

The manager insisted, “It’s already been rented.”

The agent said, “We only rent to English-speaking people.”

I was told, “You’d be more comfortable in an Asian neighborhood.”

Housing discrimination really hits home.

It still happens every day, but it’s illegal. Under the Fair Housing Act, landlords and real estate agents can’t deny you housing opportunities because of race, color, religion, national origin, sex (including gender identity and sexual orientation), familial status or disability. If you believe you have experienced housing discrimination, contact HUD or your local fair housing center so we can investigate it.

Everyone has a right to fair housing.

A public service message from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development in cooperation with the National Fair Housing Alliance. The federal Fair Housing Act prohibits discrimination because of race, color, religion, national origin, sex (including gender identity and sexual orientation), familial status or disability.
